

And I think it's, Oh, my goodness, far as I can remember I use to be scared of that place, you know. And there is, I pretty sure that is still there.

ART WORKS

(Interruption.)

(What I was particularly interested in is your sketches there. Now, that is beautiful.)

Now this guy is suppose to represent, as the (not clear) Civil War General. The only general that the Cherokee is suppose to produce. And fought on the losing side. And he's the only general, that the last one to give his sword up. The last to give up. That's what made me in so interested in it, also. The breed of the man. And so I'm trying, I've started a rough painting over that. And it, it's a first dimensional it's nothing yet.

(Oh, yes, that's gonna be nice.)

And according to, there is painting of him. There is five of them, there is Ross, Roger, Stan, Wattie, and Sequoyah and there is one more. I've forget. And anyway, I'm trying to get a --

(If you could get all of this, it sure would be an accomplishment. To have all of them.)

In their, what they call in their greatest triumphal state.

(Ah-huh, at their height of their -- )

Accomplishment!

(Accomplishment, yes. Did you tell me, you took your initial trade, in the art field at Okmulgee?)

O.S.T. Here is one that I've been, I'm sorta trying to do, something what you are trying to do, I guess. Only in a different way.
