

(Interruption.)

(In your days, when was the first store that was ever put in, over there?)

Gosh, I wouldn't know.

(The one that you would remember.)

The one that I would remember?

(Yeah)

Well, John Price had the first grocery store.

(Where was this located at?)

Well, you know 82 goes down the hill there.

(Yeah, I know where it comes off the flat, and goes down hill, there.)

Comes off the prairie and,

(Yeah)

And it kinda angles off the road there.

(Yeah)

Well now John Price lives right there, at the section line runs right in, right between two groves that he had there.

(Hum)

And right straight, through the north, west, northeast just a little bit.

There is big two story house, there yet.

(Hum)

Right south of that house, just about, a hundred yards, no it ain't hundred yards, well just about yonder, 50-60 yards.

(Hum)

That store, I don't know how long its been there, when I first knowed it I was 6 or 7 years. I was in the back end of the wagon riding with dad or somebody. Now this feller was in there with us, he's a white man. He says, "I want to pick up an Indian "Arrow". He thought that the people
