

(They, how many students went there one time? Did you go every day or did...)

No, we stayed there.

(Stayed there?)

Yeah, it's a boarding school, uh-huh.

(You stayed there?)

Yeah, we stayed there.

(I guess that the same kind they had all over?)

- Yeah, they had one at Pawhuska too.

(Yeah, they have two.)

I remember that boarding school.

(There's one on the other side of Gray Horse, too.)

Yeah, uh-huh, yeah, I remember that.

(My dad went to school there.)

Uh-huh.

(It goes so far and that's it?)

Yeah, and these latter ones, they're day schools, you know. But that's a boarding school. You know, they'd come around, you know, well, we didn't know any better in them days. They come around in a hay rack and load us up and take us in. And we got wise to lot of things, you know. We'd go bare footed so we'd get new shoes. (Laughter) They'd take us in wagons, hay wagons, and lumber wagons. Load us and take us to school into there. (How did they, you know, down there when you were going, how old were you when you was going down there?)

Down here at the...

(Yeah)

Uh-huh. I had long hair at the time, and like you know, Indian children had long hair and braids.
