

like him to get up there and say this and that--that he's a leader or anything like that. I have no respect for that man, I'm sorry to say.

(Is he one of the chiefs?)

He's one of the chiefs, but I don't care if he's a chief--I have no respect for him. I don't have no respect for that man. I don't even like to listen to him when he gets up. He's one of them, I guess, that kill my boy. They kill two boys.

(Who was the other one?)

White Shirt--Johnny White Shirt. He's Arapaho, They were working down there at El Reno building house like this. And I guess they got their check. Well, this Imogene and Cordelia were going to school--and Tommy were going to school--at Concho. Well, my son, he was coming home.

I guess he told Reed George, "I'm going and give my sisters some money and when I come back I'm going to take the bus to--I'm going and see my folks," I guess he told Reed George. So they started walking.

And they kill him before they got--he just cross that river at El Reno.

And I guess this _____ was drunk and _____ and--oh, I forgot that other man's name--anyhow, I think he's a Cherokee. Married to someone around here. That's the one they said that done that.

(How did they kill him?)

They just knocked him--in the head, I guess. And my boy--I guess he was carrying my blanket--he was bringing it home. Just think, they went and put them on the tracks and cover them with that blanket. Well, my husband said, "Well, my boy," he said, "Maybe he had to die that way.

And these people that took his life are Arapahoes. Just let it go. Let the Lord do the punishment. We got no witnesses," he said. But we had
