

of names.

(Is that the paved road going, towards Fairland?)

Yeah, it's on the paveroad, but there is a big two story house. It's what they call old Falls Hill. You know, where that's at?

(Yes, ma'm.)

Okay, you have to turn back east, there. And go over to the, about a mile, back to the Hudson Creek bridge, instead of turning go south there and turn north and -- . (Interruption). I don't type letters on the typewriter without so I carry my portable with me in the car. But I have another one at my bedside.

(Ah-huh)

But I have another at the desk, there. So I pick it up the other day. I told him I couldn't do without letters, I guess I give it back but it's been many years since I've been there.

(I guess Ottawa County, I guess, has much, very much history about any Indian in any other country?)

We have a lot of different tribe up in there.

(What do you have fourteen different tribes here?)

We had a lot of them.

(Maybe more than that, at one time.)

There's awful lot of them I know. That have been in. Next week I go out to, there is 150 Girl Scouts that I talk about the Fury's.

(Ah-hum)

At the old Fury's cemetery, where Joe Hanken place is. They camp there. I go ever year, there. And I talk to them about the Fury's.

(Well that's wonderful.)

And, as they says, sounds so. I don't know them kids get there, and get interested you know. And they all just set there. Course, you can tell so much of it, that it's truth. And then a lot of them is what they
