

call folk tales, you know.

(Surely.)

TALKS ABOUT HISTORIC MUSEUM

And a lot them, that you hear. And you tell them that and they get so interested. And they just forget everything else. And we, just set there, and talk for couple of three hours. I tell you, they just ask question, galore, some of them I answer, some of them I can't. But I sure try and answer all I can, for them. But we got a lot of Indian stuff, people from other country have even told us we could have to put in our office.

(Isn't that nice.)

And found one man, other day. That has a bowl, that has snake heads. Yeah, Snakehead or bear claws I don't know which, the end of the bowl.

(Hum)

And I said I had never saw one!

(Not--I don't think I have, either.)

And they said the quickest we got the new place they we gonna donate it. And the other day I got a bunch of manikins. When I was up there the other morning. I was trying I had some old clothes for them to put on. We found a few and so we put them on. But we can't, we are gonna make some like this clothes. We have pictures, you know, of them old fashion dress and suits men used to wear.

(Ah-hum)

So we are gonna decorate them up. We have, oh, the whole volume set. I don't know how many volumes in it. It runs over a hundred and something, of the civil war.

(Well)

That we don't have out. And we are afraid to put out. But we --
