

(Well)

Unidentified voice: There cemetery is right in the back yard of their house. Sarde, and course there this cemetery that the historical society have already.

There is another cemetery too, that you might be interested in. When, when the Indian come up from Alabama. Chief McIntosh's Uncle I believe it was, brought that Ferry Boat Constitution, or Constitution, I believe it was. They came up to Fort Gibson there. Why after they left Fort Gibson they came up to, now the Coweta Band.

(Uh-huh)

They came to Choska, Choska store.

(I know where that is.)

There is a cemetery right there. And I like (Interruption.)

(Yes; the got is there.)

Unidentified: Ah-huh.

There is another cemetery. My grandfather had a church, before he pass away. You know where Cedar Creek is?

(Ah-huh)

You know when you come out of Coweta there, you come to a bridge there, on Cedar Creek Bridge.

(Yeah)

Well, if you ever, you have to have a car, to get to the bridge. And go up on top of the hill, there. There used to be an old Church House there. And there are several graves around right there in the church yard. And then, you go that's the Berryhill, and then you go back, across the creek. I believe that was on Everett Garrett's place. You ask Everett, he can tell you.
