

it. Or even just one grave. And I even record unknown graves. Feeling that sometimes, someone will recall who they are. And they can get that written down. It's already happened that way. I've tried to pin point in the ten acres section, within the section and the range of township.) Will this cemetery that I was telling you about. I don't know who the grave is. You have to go up here. (not clear) lives here about a mile, and it's upon. I don't know it's about a half a mile upon top of the hill and there's a pile sand banks, there.

(Yes)

I don't know what cemetery that is. It was big one.

(Sometimes, we can go back to the old, old allotment records and see who's allotment it was on. And maybe that will give us temporary name.)

My Aunt had, right back-I mean your 80 acre there.

(Ah-hum)

She had another allotment 160 acres.

(She had some good land, down in here, didn't she?)

Oh! I don't know, it's sandy land right here. Back couple a farther down, will this is alright in here.

(Yeah)

All this back in here, is sandy.

(Ah-huh)

Spring, you can't do anything in here. Well, you can tell how this grew up in here.

(Yeah! It's sure growing up.)

Drown a frog, I believe.

(Yeah! It almost drown a frog.)

This is all in water here when it is wet weather.
