

And it was a tooth of a snake. And it was a snake that was talking to this young man. And he was giving him the teeth, and he said, "Here take this and go into the house where he is at and drop this in the house." And he says, "Tell them, tell your wife that they must get up early and leave because we are going to kill this Taloda." He says, "I'm going to kill him."

So then here was Taloda. He was hollering that he wanted to smoke. He said, "Everybody come over here. Come one let's everybody smoke over here." And he was calling these men, "Come on you young men, who claim to have some medicine." He said, "I want you to come too." So this boy got up and he went into this tent...and his two wives were there and he began to flirt. He began to flirt with these two women. Because he know that's what this Taloda didn't like. So he said, "I must tell these women that they must leave early in the morning before the sun comes up. That they shoudn't stay." So they started smoking and when he came into the door he dropped that on the ground. It was the tooth of the srke. And the tooth of the srke turned into a god, a snake. And it began to crawl away out of sight because the people here were coming into smoke. And Taloda began to dust the ground, the dirt, and as he was dusting the dirt off the ground he had hit the tooth of the snake. And the srke had bit him but he didn't know it and he said, "Oh something stuck my finger, something stuck my finger and it hurts." So they began to smoke and he said, "I'm going to ask you people to leave." He said, "My hand hurts." He said, "I stuck my hand and my hand hurts." And he said, "I want you all to leave now. I want to doctor myself."
