

with her. One morning old Tom Grider, who lives over here, you know, and he's going to pay a fella off down that way, and he comes to a little log or something laying across the road, and old John Steeley just steps out from behind with a gun then blowed his brains out.

(Well, I'll be.)

I mean he just splattered him so, and turned around and put the gun on this other guy. And he didn't kill him. Well, at that time my folks, we had a store over here at what's called Colcord now.

(Yeah.)
