

(Oh two other women?)

Um-hum, my mother and them.

(Did they have any Indian teachers?)

No.

(It was all white then?)

Yeah, it was pretty hard for them kids to talk English. It took a long time.

(Were they kind of mean about it?)

No.

(Who taught the classes? Were they sisters?)

Yeah, sisters taught there at the Catholic school. I don't know how many sisters they had there.

(Well you left St. Patrick's, where did you go then?)

To Haskell.

(Oh Haskell, and that's at Lawrence, Kansas?)

Yeah.

(Who runs that school?)

Oh, the government runs that school, when I was there, I don't know about now.

(Was that just for Indians?)

Yeah, for Indians.

(Do just girls go there?)

No, girls and boys.

(Well, what did you learn there?)

Oh, I didn't learn nothing much. I didn't stay there long.

(Well, what did you do there?)

Oh, go in the sewing room, work, sew. We just went to school a half a day.

(A half of day?)

Um-hum. The rest of the time we worked.

(You worked in the afternoons?)

Yeah, sometimes I worked in the mornings, and went to school in the afternoons.
