

(That's right. No, you'll find 'em many places that have been cleared off. And in the clearing they've moved houses and cemeteries, schools, and everything else. And they'll be more of 'em, I guess, as time goes on.)

The Starrs down here, that's just a little family cemetery. (words not clear)

(Well, your old cemeteries around here would be the Starr cemetery. That's back here.)

And the Briartown.

(And the Briartown.)

And the McClure.

(McClure. Coleman. And then this little Brown that's up here where the new house is.)

There's Fields back up yonder. Its an old cemetery too. But its kept up.

(Fields.)

At one time I think it was called the Possum. But its kept up. I was out there. We work hard try to keep this one cleaned up out here.

(Well, that's a job all right.)

There's another little family cemetery just up on the hill from Briartown cemetery. And its the Davis. (static)...his grandfather grave. We went to used to call it the Brewer Bend cemetery. I think they call it the Three River now.

(Yes.)

We've been there and looked. But someone--they found his uncle's grave. And i was out there by the house. But his father stayed here or his grandfather stayed here with his mother. And he went off up back around Okay. Up in around Fort Gibson.

(Yeah.)

Where (words not clear)...back here. He caught pneumonia and died up there. My daddy just tried and tried to find out.
