

Well, that's what's going on. These people come out from town (static)...

I tell 'em and they just run. I step in one place and the old coyote will sitting on one or laying on it.

(That's right. Yeah, man has got to be a lot smarter than that coyote if he's going to catch them fellas.)

I mean that.

(And more he's a smart animal. Well, now see that's something else that has--even the animals are changing.)

Oh sure, uh-huh.

(One time I guess this country was full of deer, then they all disappeared.

And they may be coming back now. I don't know.)

Wild turkeys.

(Wild turkeys. 'Course they're gone.)

They're gone.

MANY CHANGES IN SIXTY YEARS

(Oh it's really interesting to learn about the things that have happened over the last fifty or sixty years.)

Oh yeah.

(I guess your county seat, Sallisaw, I guess it's changed a whole lot in time too. New highways come through. Railroads, they've changed.)

People has been here and come back since all these highways has been put in here. And they get lost. They don't know where they're at.

(That's right.)

Like we had some friends come back here last fall from California. He's a older man and woman. Oh, he was wanting to come, but he couldn't drive--.

(I've heard of Gunns and I figured it would be an old settlement.)
