

both married to my grandpa.

(Which was the oldest?)

Dropping Lip.

(Was he married to anyone else besides those two?)

Well, after this one passed away, he didn't exactly marry her, but he used to live with her--her name was Traveller.

(Haven't we talked about Traveller before?)

No--that's my grandpa, Road Traveller. But this woman's name was Traveller.

(Was she a sister of Cut Nose and Dropping Lip?)

No. No relation. He just fell in love with her, I guess.

(Did he have any other wives, then?)

That's all.

(What about Sitting Bull and Dropping Lip--did they have any children?)

Yeah, they had children. They had a daughter named Lydia. And then they had a boy by the name of Moses. Just what I know I'm going to tell you. Moses, and then he had Joe.

(Another boy named Joe?)

Yeah. And then another boy named Stacy. And then he had--the oldest boy was Clement. And then his daughter was Jenny. And then they had another daughter but she was one of these, you know, that always be off. She never went to school. Her Indian name was Good Woman. That's all the children I know.

(That was seven from Dropping Lip. O.K. What about Sitting Bull and Cut Nose--did they have any children?)

I don't think she had any--I don't know.

(What about Sitting Bull and Traveller?)

Well, they had children. And one of them is living over here--Armstrong's
