

(What if you're talking about him to someone else--what would you call him?)

nε b ε si.bæhæ'

(And what about his wife, like Dropping Lip, what could you call her?)

I used to call her newω

(That's the same as you'd call your own grandmother, isn't it?)

Yeah.

(And if you're talking about her to someone else, what would you call her?)

nei.bæhæ'

(Would you say that again?)

nei.bæhæ'

(What about Cut Nose--what would you call her?)

newω-- same thing.

(And Traveller, you'd call her the same?)

Yeah, same thing.

(Now, I know this is getting pretty far out, but did you know Cleaver Warden?)

I used to see him.

(Would you call him anything like that?)

No. I didn't have anything to do with him. She (Traveller) wasn't really my grandma--they were just living together.

(O.K. What about the children of Sitting Bull and Dropping Lip. Like Lydia--what would you call her--if you were calling her as a relative?)

Well, in Indian, I used to say nω'ω. -- "mother."

(That's the same as you'd call your mother?)

Yeah.

(And if you're talking about her to someone else, how would you--?)

neinω

(What if you called Lydia that, and you could have called Jennie and these