

(Nineteen seven?)

Yeah.

(Had he been out of school very long?)

Not very long. He must have been out about three or four years. I don't know.

(Now, this younger brother that died--did he ever attend school?)

No.

(What about Esther--did she have any kids?)

She had one boy. Her husband's name was John Williams. And I never hear that little boy's English name, but they used to call him Yellow Cloud.

(Did they have any other kids besides him?)

No--just that one.

(Did he ever have any kids?)

No. He was a little boy when he died. I don't know what was wrong with him, but he never was lively.

A RETARDED PERSON

(What about Cross Eyes--did she have any kids?)

No. Nobody won't have her!

(Did she ever marry?)

No. She just used to sit and go this way--look at her fingers and she'd look towards the front. She was off.

(Did she talk or anything?)

Oh, she could talk, but she wouldn't hardly talk to anybody. And she used to sing these Ghost Dance songs. She used to just sit and sing to herself. And she had--ooh, her voice was just like a man's. Uh-uh--uh! (Imitates her, in-deep voice) She was pitiful! She was a pitiful girl! I used to be afraid of her. Yeah, when we first got married, her and her mother came to our house while we were camping. And oh, I was afraid of her.
