

name.

(What about Theodore--does he have any kids?)

He's got three.

(What was his wife's name?)

May James. May--her name's May. She's May James now. They separated long time, but they had three children.

(What was her maiden name, or what family was she from?)

White Shirt.

(O.K. And the children of Theodore and May, what are they?)

Mary Lou, and Sidonia. And the boy is Jesse.

(And does Mary Lou have any children?)

Yeah.

(These people, like Mary Lou and Sidonia and Jesse and Jerry and Florence--do you call these your relatives--do you count them as part of your relations?)

Yeah--from my husband.

(Does it make a difference--or much of a difference among the Arapahoes if they're you're husband's relatives or your own relatives?)

(Shakes her head no.)

(You treat them the same?)

Yeah.

(O.K. As long as you're calling them your relations, I'm interested in them.)

There's too many! And here I'm by myself; over here.

(Well, what was Mary Lou's husband's name?)

Calvin Sankey.

(How many kids do they have?)

Five. Three girls and two boys. They're little.

(What about Sidonia--does she have any?)
