

Rosetta LeClair asked to come and view the flag. (Myrtle telling Saul who she wants to give away to. Peggy Jenkins, you're asked to come and shake hands with Harry Bates, one of the pallbearers of the flag. Marie Old Crow (Saul directs people where to come as they near the stand.) Kate Osage, you're asked to come and acknowledge some gifts in honor of Tommy Howling Buffalo.

Mrs. Old Crow. (called again)

Eva Old Crow.

Margaret Cedar Tree, you're wanted here.

The lady ther that's on this end on the first row, you're wanted over here-- Gloria---If Margaret isn't here, would someone please come and acknowledge this for her. (Pause)

The next number is for Harry Black, son of Mary Medicine Elk. At this time there's a special for that flag. Who was honored during the time of the burial the flag was laid upon his casket--Harry Black. When this boy was in the service at Fort Leonard Wood an accident occurred during the maneuvers-- the car must have turned over on the boy, and his life while he was in the service. And he was awarded the American flag on his casket, the one that's being used this afternoon at this time it's at half-mast.

(Drum begins, and song)

Now this a picture of the boy that lost his life during the service. Let us everyone arise, please. (Song is sung. Don't remember if family danced around or not---probably did, carrying picture.)

Saul: Sophie Limpy, asked to come and view the picture of Harry Black, who gave his life during the time of his service at Fort Leonard Wood. An accident occurred during maneuvers--a car fell on him. He lost his life during the service for the maintainance of that flag that's being displayed this afternoon. It was awarded at the time of his life being lost. If Sophie
