

Willow, you're asked to come and view the picture, the lady here, giving recognition of her uncle. The lady here would like to thank Arthur (Sutton) for the response that he has given and would like to award him a gift at this time. (Arthur Sutton gets a beautiful red Pendleton blanket--he danced in the processional.) The next number for this afternoon so far is for Junior Moore. Little boy, (head dancer), I think he's present. Whatever has been asked by the parents, the drummers should know. The next number will follow, there, Rosetta LeClair--lady head dancer--will follow, this number. Please get ready. This little boy's the grandson of Joe Neely. He's a little gourd clan (dancer).

(Song starts--gourd dance song). ✓

Johnny Washee, Junior: (announcing) All right, you gourd dancers come on in. We're going to have a little gourd dancing in our afternoon program. (Song is sung)

We are asking all gourd clanners to come and participate this afternoon, regardless of the tribe. If you are in any gourd clan, you are welcome.

(Another song is sung)

Saul: Gloria Durango, you're asked to come and shake hands with the little boy here, one of the gourd clan members. This special was for the little boy. I was asked by your chairman, (Alonzo Sankey) to pinchhit for the M.C. (Johnny Washee, Junior) and he's present and I'm going to turn it over to him.

Johnny Washee, Junior: (to Saul) Thank you for helping me out this afternoon. You're doing a real good job and I'd like for you to carry on. All hands needed.

Saul: Well, you know I'm just a jack-of-all trades and master of none, but
