

in Okeene, I think, and Fairview. I don't know where else. But there ain't no Catholic church here.

(Are there any Indians that go to those churches?)

No.

(What about over here in Seiling--are there some Indian churches over here?)

Mennonite Church. That's all.

(Do they have any Pentecostal church over there?)

I don't know. I never been to that. But I know they got Mennonite church.

(What about Eagle City--are there any Indian churches there? Have there been any in the past?)

No. They haven't never had any Indian church there, but they had a Methodist Church there, and it's gone.

(Did any of the Indians who lived around there go to that church?)

No. Indians don't go to church. They don't go to church unless they have to--just a funeral day they all go. That's the only time they go into church.

(Has it always been like that?)

It's always been like that. Always been like that.

(What about--I've met these McElhaney's that have a church in Geary. Aren't they supposed to have an Arapaho church--or church in an Arapaho district--do you know whether they have many Indians in their congregation?)

You know I wouldn't know because I don't go down that way very much, and I wouldn't know. But I know they got a church there.

(Are there other Indians besides the McElhaney's that have come here from other areas--like I know Mrs. McElhaney is Kiowa and her husband is Cherokee or something like that--I just wondered if there were other Indians for other tribes that have come to work among the Indian churches here.)

No. There haven't been anything like that.

(Have the churches around here--like this Mennonite church--have they ever had camp meetings like some of the Baptist and Methodist churches do--once a year?)

Not around here.

(How about a long time ago--did they ever do that?)

I never did know of a camp meeting.
