

Clinton: Cynthia Osage, asked to step forward and receive a table gift (table of goods.)

Roy: Again a sister, making introduction of her brother, is calling Sally Sutton (Arapaho.) (Sally gets a shawl and a basketful of goods.)
Again the sister here is calling Ernest Loneman (?) (Name not clear.)
From Hammon.

Clinton: If she isn't here, would someone from Hammon step forward and receive it for her.

Roy: Calling Rosie Jean Howling Buffalo. You're asked to come up here and receive a shawl and shake hands with Archie here.

Jess: That's Myrtle Lincoln's granddaughter. Roy's going to take it-- they're related. His wife is related to them.

Roy: We have some Crow Indians here. You're asked to come up here.

Clinton: We're asking the Crow Indians to step forward and receive a gift. None of the Indians have crows, but the Crow Indians.

Jess: The Crows used to be our traditional enemies. They're a great people to steal. But, just like these crows you see around here, if they hear you pretty frequently, they'll fly away. And if there are Crows that are sneaking around and got suspicion, they take out and fly away--that's why we call them Crows.

Roy: Calling Lujan there.

Jess: From Taos Pueblo.

Clinton: We're delighted to have Mr. and Mrs. Lujan from New Mexico with us.

Roy: Calling the C & A Gourd Dancers. (Pause) Calling (unintelligible).

Clinton: Calling Kish Weinberg, Jim Wardhasso, Harvey Beartrack, and William Goodbear. We have a gentleman here that wants to give you some
