

A woman passes by in front of Jess and I and says to Jess: "Sugar! Honey! I love you, sweetheart!?" Jess ignores her. She says: "No ears." Everyone around us laughs. Jess says to me: "My sister-in-law. She's eating me up now." The woman says: "Where's that blanket--you were going to sleep warm?" Jess replies: "I was afraid to give it to you--you might get jealous of each other and give it away somewhere else!?" (People around laugh.) (They exchange some remarks hard to understand on tape.)

Clinton: (telling a joke)...reminds me of a gentleman who came to Barefoot Park. He was a lieutenant governor. He was staying with my uncle. And he said, "I got a lieutenant governor staying with me--from New Mexico." He said, "That ain't nothing--I got a uncle that's a full governor--Martin Edge!" (Everyone laughs.) (Jess says Martin Edge is a Cheyenne and married Edna Puppay, Arapaho.)

Clinton: Next on the program in honor the Korean veterans and Viet Nam veterans, on this day that was set aside to honor all veterans. We've honored veterans of World War I and World War II and now we're honoring veterans of Korean War and Viet Nam War. We're asking all veterans of these wars to take part in this next number.

(Jess says the lady he was joking with is a "sister-in-law." She's the daughter of Nellie Star and a descendant of Black Kettle. Song begins. Jess says it is a Memorial Song. (It has Cheyenne words.)

Fanman: All right, we got some of the boys that came back. We'd like to have them get up and strut. I know some of them are a little shy. (Memorial song ends after being sung several times. Another song begun-- a War Dance. The Memorial song was slow with soft drum so that words could be heard.)
