

over there and she's still in there. And this Madiline--they had quite a few, but most of them has passed away. But you know how she talk, and she just split up the club. Split up the club and they never did re-elect, or anything.

(And what was the name of their club?)

They used to call it "Northwestern."

(Who were officers in that?)

I don't know. I didn't pay any attention to that club.

(Did they have certain kind of blankets or anything?)

No. They used to just wear shawls.

(Would their shawls be all different or would they be alike?)

Different. Just any way. They didn't exactly have--I don't know what they organize for--they didn't have no boys in the service at that time.

No. And after they broke up, they had service--

(Now Warren was in the service wasn't he--I've heard stories about--?)

Yeah, he was in the service.

(Didn't he get some kind of a medal or some kind of honor?)

I don't know. You know this Madiline always talk about that he killed lot of Japs. I don't know. He don't like to talk about it. But he told us he killed--I think he said he killed twelve. And I don't know--I always just listen when they talk about it.

(Did they ever have any specials for him that you remember when he was in the service?)

No. I never did know. His grandfather was living that time, but I don't think--no, I don't think they ever had special for him.

(Now his grandfather--that was Ira Sankey?)
