

with the old people?)

Oh, well yes. I think some cases, they tell em that if they be willing they be put on a budget. And I think that's a wise move, because you take the older people can't get out and work..well you take anybody even the white person, they take the money and they just throw the money away. They broke and without..really discouraging sometimes to think that.

(How many of the Wichitas have regular jobs?)

One night I was thinking..people I know that has a permanent job is 57. Yes, course somenights as I lie in bed I think of our people away from home. We have some in California Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, State of Washinton. We have one in Washinton, D.C. some in Kansas, in other words, I just guess..I mean I counted about 57 there could be more or less, but around 57. You know one thing I'm really pround we have one man that's second to that big man in the employemnt office in Oklahoma city. New Nurose.

(What about the other side of this? Are there many Wichitas dependent upon ADCn and welfare?)

Well there's perhabs not too many. Where there's family separation, divorce or something they ask for it. The woman gets on a that state aid on that side. Other than they live on their income. Some people, I tell you they receive good income. I know one of my cousins' daughters, she receives around four or five thousand, just from rentals. That's pretty good money if you just manage the thing right. Not taxes.

(Are most of your oeople who are out of state go out on relocation programs?)

Well, no. You take all..might be one or two, but most of them just been out there before this thing began, working. Youtake those boys out here, there's about eight or nine in California. Well they were out there before World War II started after it. Other words they went out ther on their own.

(Are there any Wichitas that have been relocated through the office?)

No, I don't hardly think there is.

(What do you think of the relocation program?)
