

he's the only one that composed those songs. I don't know how many songs he had composed. And other well known singers, they begin to pick that up, compose songs. A week ago today, we sang a song at our dance. Kiowa Chieftain Memorial Park west of here. That song is composed by Bill Cohoney for our daughter Sue Donna. And there's a man that--that had talent composed songs too. And those kind of men their talent is few and far between. Just anybody can't get up and get around and compose songs. I know I can't. I don't know about Lee here, but he can do anything. He said he can't do anything, but I won't put it past him. He might--he might be a composer, undiscovered talent. However, no--very few men can compose songs as well as put words in it which have proven very successful. In the past, that's what the Kiowa men--they composed songs when they go to war, when they come back, when their sons go first time they go into battle, they composed songs, call their names out. Of course, they call them heroes. They make songs for them too. Just like today, when they sing those reverend songs. In the past, we had James Anquol who is incapacitated, cannot get around. He was one of the composers of our tribe, and another well known Kiowa Indian Louie Toyebo, also one of our composers of our time. And today, we then have Cozad. So, this again, I want to repeat there are far and few between where a man can compose songs. And Mr. Cozad has that talent. He has been given it, and he utilize it. And we people have enjoyed singing those songs. Put the words into it, compose the music, and put the words in there. Awful hard, he had that talent. Very few of us have it. So, just one of the aspect of the life of Cozad. He had made many Kiowa people as well as other tribal members happy by composing songs for service men, very striking, very beautiful songs. Makes tears come into ones eyes--when you have a boy over seas, when you hear this song, you can't help--you cannot help but shed a tear or two for your boy. So, those things accomplish its--it touches the heart, it's very touchy and very good. Those are some of the things that our fore-bearers have left for us. And then our humble way, we try to share them all. This afternoon, this portion of the program is devoted to Victory Dance carried on by our great warriors of the
