

(Do you recall anything about the old female seminary?)

I didn't go, but my husband did.

(Your husband went to the seminary, now he went to the female seminary?)

No, he went to the male seminary at Tahlequah. And I have the pictures of them.

(Um-hum.)

And I loaned them to this Indian doings and they made a book of it. I had the library and the capital at Tahlequah. And I had or I used to have the Presbyterian Mission, but things got scattered when we fixed this old house, and I've lost them, a lot of them. But if I just don't dig around anymore to find them. Here's one when I moved back to Parkhill. And I didn't live here but I lived on my mother's place. We traded with Eubanks and they had a boy Charlie Capp and Lizzie Capps. She's a mighty fine woman and they's nice people, the Capps' were.

(Does any of your, either your father or mother recall anything about the Trail of Tears?)

No, they weren't old enough but they are related to the ancestors who got this Murrell Home.

(You are related?)

Um-hum. Well, Mrs. Douglas didn't telly you that we were first cousins, I guess. And Chief John Ross was my great grandfather.

(Chief John Ross was your great grandfather?)

We moved.

FAMILY LIVED IN PARKHILL AREA

(Tell us about the old springs around Parkhill or these mills they used to have.)

What?

(The old mills they used to have at Parkhill.)

They may have a mill there once in time and a cotton gin too, but I don't have any pictures of it.

(Unidentified voice) Are you going to get your pictures back?
