It would be eighty-nine then.
(Well, that's what I thought.)
About, 1889.
I was born in 1888.
E11a was born in 1888 and mine was in 1880.
She was nine years ofd (not clear).
(Not clear) to see George T.
Weil, now (not clear).
(Eight from 21 , you would be 83 . Years ago, you subtract eighty-three and you get it right.)

Yeah.
(Pausé)
(Eighty-eighty, wasn't it?
Eighty-seven.
No, 1888.
See, I was born in ' 88 .
And you started to school three years after that. Jane was twelve when I was (Interrupted):

I was a year old. Wasn't born- the next year I was born.
(Yeah:)
You was visiting over there. My Uncle's aunt, her hàme was Nancy Lee
Robinson," and we were visiting thered. We heard the logs falling. under, the ceiling and catch afire: And we knew they had to get put And we come home and my dad got on 'a' forse and went to' see about it and seen everything had burned. I went down there one time with my mother over tó the grave to visit. .
(And you went the cemetery one time with your mother to visit?)
I didn't go to school: I just went with my mother. (Un-hum.)
