

in the country, it be rather hard. That's what he would tell me. I don't know about people prejudiced, but..it could be. One day I was over here, I'm not calling his..one man he's dead. I was over here, I was a little way from a couple of Indians talking. They were both in Civil Service. Well, one came from California or somewhere out there. And there were two business men.. one of the business men, he was a lawyer..he's dead. Anyway, as they were approaching the Indians, this lawyer recognized these two fellows, went over and shook hands. But this other guy, he didn't seem like he saw them..other words, I don't think he was in a mood to shake hands, or he would shook hands because the other man did, see. I won't say, now..whether they were prejudiced against or could be it could have been more in the past than it is now. If it is so. Because like I said, that more Indians have job chance now. Well, there's a fellow here got an establishment, he's got cleaning establishment. Two Indians work in it. I know another one over there, but he quit his job. Jap (Jasper Sankadote) . I think he quit for reasons of his wife's health, that's what I hear.

(Several minutes of irrelevant conversation.)

I think though like I said, we begin to come to our senses, our people.

(Is it hard to get credit here if you wanted to start a business?)

That's right. You go to the Indian Office.

(How about the banks? Can Indians get credit at the banks?)

ATTITUDES TOWARD BIA:

Well, if you go to the banks, they'll refer it to the Indian Office. See, Congress has..I think the Senate has it in it's chamber, or it's in the hands of the sub-committee or the whole committee..the Senate Bill 1816, deciding that this certain bill is to be known as Indian Resources Development Bill. We turned it down.

(Why was that?)

We didn't figure ..the features of it, they look pretty good. But when you
