

Oh, yes! Ah-huh.

(About 18---)

Like 1828, you see. That was the settler, you know. That built this home, you know, back then.

(Chief John Ross bought this home?)

Bought it, ah-hum.

(Does he remember who own it, when he bought it?)

By the people of Fields, yes. And this woman Fields, married Captain Smith. Who him and his Fields woman was the mother and father of Uncle John Ross's wife. He married Liza Leary.

(Oh, ah-hum!)

So there was two of them, and Miss Flora Smith is--was their daughter. And you know, she married that preacher, who used to preach at Ardmore. And he got finger got sticky, and he just disappeared. And Aunt Flora, you know, had doggone many kin folks that wasn't kin to us. She used to teach school here, you know. So--

(At the Seminary, Female Seminary?)

No, She went to school up there, (Not clear)

(Oh!)

Ah-huh.

(You haven't heard of Granny Wolf?)

Oh, yes!

(What do you know about her?)

I don't know her. See I, was gone---

(I know she was real, been many years since she's was here. But I read where she didn't speak any English and she had a colored girl that spoke, translated for her. She was full blood Cherokee.)
