

(That the picture, that's in John Ross' yard, huh?)

No! John Ross, home was Rose Cottage, where the Hoffman's live now, back of it. That was called Rose Cottage. See, he built that so he would be close to his daughter.

(Oh, I see!)

Yes, and this is the hackberry tree, man rode up here with a switch and hit it down and that was finally--the end of it, they all said "You better cut that tree down, it'll blow over", well; "I said the good Lord will look after it." So the last tree stood straight up that old (not clear) barn, was on it, it just fell over and it was just nothing. So now it has vines around it, and I said long as it stand, it's gonna stand. So, that's the hackberry tree.

(Ah-huh.)

But now, if there was one down there---at Rose Cottage, I don't know.

(They talking about some man, name Payne, came to see Chief John Ross, and they set underneath this tree (Hattie interrupt s her) and playing "Home Sweet Home". That would be down t ere at Rose Cottage, I remember when Payne came, I mean lived there. So that is where that would be in that old bean tree.

(This is the coffee bean tree that I see.)

"If you can loan me $5.00 in gold or silver I will replace it soon and if I get it. I'm owing Mr. Bob Lovett that sum. And he wants to please send it by Johnny, if you have it. He would deliver it then."

(That was Chief John Ross?)

Ah-hum. See he was borrowing $5.00 after he married Chief John's daughter. Then J. D. Mockey he married the youngest sister of Chief John Ross. See there was three boys and six daughters of their father and mother. That was--.
