

we could get. And you'd have to buy it at Mountain View or Fort Cobb, course it was nine miles to Mountain View and eleven miles to Fort Cobb, I believe, but it was quite a proposition. The grass began to come in the spring and he handled large cattle. We rasied to know what cattle was with 'umall the time. And with our farming we hold on to teams. We had walking machinery. We had walking cultivators and walking planters for the first several years that we farmed. And then we began to get ridding machinery and we really thought we was gettin' along. When we began to gettin' ridin' machine y, well really thought we's gettin' along on it. When we began to get riddin' machinery well, that was something out of this world. And one row at a time, then after I started farming in '16, why wouldn't but a few years when two rows...(unintelligible) Boy, it'd take four good miles and two good cultivating to get out 20 acres of cotton a day, why I had the world whipped then. I was turning it over (unintelligible).

GOODS BOUGHT AND SOLD:

Tin wagon and buggy and, but then later years, I'd say by 1906 or 07, Carnegie had been proved (?) away. You could buy anything in Carnegie that you could in Fort Cobb and Mountain View. But, Mt. View and Ft. Cobb were the only two towns that you could find anything. --- or lumber or dry goods, impliments or anything like that for the first two years after we came here. (

(Did you ever trade at Apache?).

No, we never did trade at Apache. I don't know whether--I don't believe Apache is as old as--as old a town as Apache. I don't believe it is. I'm not sure that I'm right about that, But I don't believe Apache is old a town as Carnegie.

(Do you know some of the prices that you got for your crop?)

Well, $15 was a good price for two (?) steer. And Cotton. If we could get a nickel a pound, we done well. If we got 3¢ a pound for fat hogs, we's well pleased for that and corn about 40¢ a bushel.

(About how much stock did you raise?)

Ah, cattle, hogs, they's generally kept at 35 to 50 cows a year.

(Who did you sell to?)

Jest local traders-local buyers, We had cow buyers that bought--that went
