

get by. He just couldn't.

(What about Sequoyah Mills?)

Oh yes. My boy that got killed, he worked at Sequoyah. They got a little furniture factory right here at Carnegie, but the town owns it. But they used to just get fifty dollars a week. But like him, now, he had five children and his wife, and he couldn't hardly make it off fifty dollars. So he had to just quit over here and go to Sequoyah. And he made it pretty good. They pay about $125 over there. Yea, they pay pretty good, and you could work overtime, and you get...but this Carnegie owns this little furniture factory, and they won't give you more than fifty dollars a week. But he just couldn't make it. So he had to go to Sequoyah.

(Joe Wheeler: You was talking about boy. The boy, the boy was in the Army. And ...well, he got in the accident. Wanted his discharge, but we never did know what he done with his discharge. Couldn't locate it, no way. They asked about it there. Well, the government...the social security:....)

USE OF LIFE INSURANCE MONEY FOR BURIAL, AND RED TAPE IN GETTING V.A. MONEY

No, he paid that on his insurance, his burial...from that five thousand insurance. Well, his wife buried him with that. So, if they ever get that straightened out with his veterans, well, they gonna pay Leona back. But they buried him where they bury the servicemen. They got a plot there, that's where they buried him. (Down at Lawton?)

No, here at Anadarko. At Anadarko. And whenever they get this straightened out, well, they gonna pay Leona back that money. It was over one thousand dollars.

(Discussion about getting proper papers)

They (V.A.) got it. This V.A. at Carnegie is working on 't. They already got his serial number. But I know there was a boy, went in with him same time, their numbers were close. I thought maybe he would know, you know, his serial number. She found a little testament, and he had his serial number written in there, on a little paper. She found it and she took it to the veterans here at Carnegie. The veterans man comes from
