They had a meeting in Oklahoma City. He went, he said he was going to bring it up again. I don't know, it kind of hit me hard. I got a chair like that, the wheel went out, one of them. I don't know, I been wanting go down to Chickasha, that's where I got it. I gonna notify them, they give me another wheel. Because that guarantee gonna run out, November. I have to pay for everything what I get, even a limb. Sell a piece of land before I bought it. I couldn't get no money, couldn't get it from the state. See I tried the state.

(Why couldn't you get it from the State?)

Well, here's the way they put it. State, that's the same as welfare. First man I talked to, this man was from Lawton. I told him, I want to get a limb, you know. Start at the hospital. I got healed up there. Well, I met the man here in Anadarko, he said, yea, go to school, down here at Okmulgee. I told him, why I couldn't do no kind of work, no kind of school work. My eyes are bad, and my hearing ain't no good. My age, too. I'd have to go over there, pick up some kind of trade, before they give me...can't make it. Account of your age, too. A year ago, I became 65, you know. Well, that guy said you ought to apply for old age. Every time I see them he says, down here at the agency, you drawing insurance. Well, we did draw our boy's insurance. He got killed while he was in the service, you know. We drawed that for...well, it expired in 1966. That's when it expired. That's when the whole thing expired. It was from the Veteran's Administration, you know.

(What war was that from?)

Oh, well, he didn't go to war, he was just in service when he got killed.

(Was that the Second World War?)

No, he didn't go into the war. It was after the Second World War. He went in the Navy, you know. Serve, he was still in the Navy when he got killed. We draw his insurance. All that time at the Agency, you know, I get a letter...you people's still drawing insurance. I told them last night it stopped about six years ago. I ain't drawing nothing. Well, that's what it says on here. I told that man, you better change your book. He's a
