

they must have made treaty in 1891...treaty. I don't know. It's among our tribe, you know.

Most of what...it's jealousy, what they want to do. That chairman what we had before this man. Kept after him, kept after him, People...all he give him, he says, well you don't attend councils. We have meetings and you don't come. That's what we over there for. To sell us. Why don't you get a lot. Well, it takes time. They finally ran into one. Oh, I don't know. Our tribal council never did work, you know, like it ought to. I had a cousin, he's married, in Lawton. Harold...I think he was a congressman. He says, Harold, you ought to do it. What's the matter with you Wichitas. It's this same man. Well, some of our tribal council didn't like him, cause he was colored. Well, he could talk good English. But they didn't like him. But that's what he's given me. Well, he goes through the congress, when we want money. Which he was right, but they don't go by it. But they got one, I don't know how it's going to come out. But that's the way we stop.

Another man, another chairman. He says its all over, you people just as well forget. I don't want to forget. They change everything, Washington, they change every other year, different ones come in there. Now they got this claims commission. That's where you have to go. So, I don't know how we'll make it, you know. But, our tribal council, they Republicans, every one of them is. And they want...I tell them, what's wrong with it. It's too small a lawyer. He's been through law school, just like them others. They got somebody. They got...Hinton, I think it is. I think his name's Leewellyn. I think I know him. He could try.

RELOCATION PROGRAM

(Joe, you were talking about some of the young Wichitas that went off to get jobs. Did they do that under the relocation program?)

Well, it's...in a way, I guess it works out. Hang on to it, as long as they got a job. But, I don't see why they didn't start that, long time. That's what I want to know. Many years back. Like my age, didn't have no kind of work. Just like that social security man, you know. He says, did you ever work. I tell him,
