

Yeah.

(Why did you decide to deed it to them?)

I thought I was going to die. I was sick.

(What was wrong?)

I don't know what was wrong with me. I was just sick. I was sick a long time. I had to wean Hannibal. His grandmother took him. She told him I wasn't going to die. I was sick.

(What was wrong?)

I don't know what was wrong with me. I was just sick. I was just sick. I was sick a long time. I had to wean Hannibal. His grandmother took him. She told me I wasn't going to nurse him any more. And you know what she raised him with? Flour gravy. She used to make gravy for him to feed him. He was about five months old. Yeah, that was my husband's mother, my mother-in-law.

(Did you ever go to a doctor during that time?)

We had Dr. Hart, but all he used to give me was castor oil and aspirins. And that's all he used to give me. I finally got over it. And then after I got stouter I was all right. And I wanted to go back and take my land back from my kids, but I deed it to them, and it was approved. I couldn't get it back.

(When you decided to deed it to your kids, did you have to go into the office?)

No. I sent for Mr. Kingsley to come down and see me. When the doctor come down there he was with Mr. Kingsley. So I told him I wanted to--He said, "Just will it," he said. "If you get well, if you want to break it up, you can." But, "If you deed it, you can't break it up." "Well, I don't want it break up," I said. So I just deed it to three of them. So he fix it and the
