

Yeah. Lewis got old enough and so he got his. And then Hannibal got old enough and he got his. And I didn't get very much. They used to get more. When they all got up of age, I had just one year to lease it. So I lease it that year and they got their share, and that was the last of it. Then they were the ones that used to lease it. I didn't get nothing out of it. (Did you ever inherit land from anybody?)

No. My sister, she sold all her land before she died. That was about the only one I would--well, my mother's--I inherit my mother's and I was in school yet when they sold it. My money was put in the bank in Okeene until I was of age. And what I had was fourteen hundred. And while I was going to school I used to use it. When I want to get anything or buy something, I used to ask for it and they would get it for me. After I got out of school I had--I don't know how much I had left--I used to draw it--two hundred (?) dollars a month.

(Did you have any of it left when you got married?)

No. I didn't have anything left.

(Did your father have land?)

No. It was sold. Yeah. They sold all their land long time (ago). I don't know--mighty little for it. He sold the land and he bought a buggy and two horses for me and my brother. We used to ride around in them. But of course he used to give us money. But when he got to drinking, well, his money was gone.

(About how old were you and your brother when he bought the buggy?)

Oh, I don't know how old I was and I don't know how old my brother was. It's so long I forget.

(Were you still a school girl?)

Yeah, I used to go to school.
