

always just be fifty-eight cents." "Well, give me fifty cents," she said. I gave her fifty cents for it. Then we kept on playing. She just punch me. "Hey," she said. "Give me dollar for quilt," she said. I gave her that dollar. I had four dress goods and a quilt and a pound of coffee and five pounds of sugar! Jessie Birdshead told them, "This woman come over here and rob that poor old lady!" "It's not my fault--it's hers," I told them.

(How did you get the dress goods?)

I gave her a dollar for them. They were all four yards (in length). A dollar apiece (for each four-yard length). And I used to beat her in the game!
