

(Joe, how--how--how do they mark the goal?)

Mr. Wheeler: What?

(How do they mark the goal line?)

Mr. Wheeler: Well, they just--I don't know. I don't think they put any kind of sticks. They just have certain places, you know.

(Mmm-hmm.)

Mr. Wheeler: They don't mark. I didn't see any.

(Yeah.)

Mr. Wheeler:.. But they have place where--well, whenever the ball is in them things, strings goes, that's a, you know, that's a score.

(Yeah.) (cough)

Mr. Wheeler: That's about all on that woman's game.

(Yeah.)

Unidentified voice: Ask him if the name--if their ceremony had a name, and if the stick and the ball--(not clear) did you get it?

(Yeah, the name of the game I got. What--did the--did that double ball have any name in Wichita?)

Mr. Wheeler: What?

(The double ball, how do they call that in Wichita?) (Pause)

Mr. Wheeler: Only think I call it is (Wichita Indian word).

(Yeah.)

Mr. Wheeler: I think you got it all in that, that (Wichita Indian word).

(Yeah. And how about the stick?)

Mr. Wheeler: It's the same. It's the same thing, but you put a (Wichita Indian word) on there.

(Wichita Indian word)

Mr. Wheeler: (Wichita Indian word)
