

life--worked hard all my life. I worked like a man. I used to even farm. Now I'm to where I just--I guess I just give up. Although I do a little more work, but not as hard as I used to work.

COMMENTS MADE AT CANTONMENT--OLD BUILDING SITES

(--the soldiers were buried over through here?)

Yeah, all over in here--this was a cemetery. They just had rocks for their markers.

(This is the recreation area. And over in here is where Nobel's last stand was?)

Over there--back to the south. Cheyennes were all camping over here. Arapahoes were camped over there, south.

(Interruption)

(You see that hill? On the other side of this tree row? That's where he had his Sun Dance. Just west of this little landing strip. That was tribal land. Yeah, Cheyennes came to his Sun Dance. We used to walk from the house. And my aunt was camping over here and we used to just stop at her place. That was Mrs. Coal Fire. That's when I lived where I do now.

(Some irrelevant conversation)

That house that Imogene's got now used to be the Mennonite Church at Cantonment. It set right over here on the hill by that elem tree. Close to the creek over there. It used to be Arapaho church--Mennonite. That's where we used to--

That was the school principal's house. That school was over there where you see that thing--that chimney sort of thing. That's where the school house was. By that tree over there on the east side was the girls' building and on the west side of that tree was the boys' building. It was a good school but they abolished it. There wasn't enough of them going to school.

(This building here was what?)

That's where them soldiers used to live. There was more buildings but they were made out of wood just like posts, straight down. They were long ones, but I think this one was the officers' house. And then we had it for our Agency, you know, this building.

(Built of native stone.)

Over here where that cedar tree is there was a big barn--long one.
