

(Yeah. Joe, how do you--when you fix the tobacco, how do you fix it?)

Well, it's a---

MORE ABOUT TOBACCO - MIXING FOR USE

(Well, what--what kind of tobacco do you use?)

Well, they usually use--well, in them days, I wouldn't know, but I see--some of them, they use this (not clear) twist, but it's strong.

(Yeah, yeah.)

It's strong. I--sometimes, I use--oh, any kind of tobacco, maybe, Durham, but we have to use that--I guess they call it (not clear) there, you know.

(Yeah.)

Grows that high, turns red.

(Yeah.)

We use that, mix it with it. That's all, but if you got--they have--I often heard it. My uncle, you know, put some in there, but they use it to smoke. It's kind of--I don't know. I think it's a herb. I never did see it, but he puts it in there, you know.

(Do they ever put any kind of fat in that tobacco?)

Well.

(When you fix it?)

I don't know. You know, see, there's a (not clear). It's a--see, after you fix it, it's a--maybe something in it, so many bound to.

(Yeah.)

You know, it's kind of, you know--is that thing on?

(Yeah.)

Well, I'll tell you. (Pause) I mean, it's just kind of (not clear) about this tobacco. We had--we had lot of trouble. They--we had no trouble, but we had trouble with pipes several times. I know I couldn't--cuss word
