

Is it all right if I rest?" And that rabbit said, "Yeah, yeah! Go ahead! You're welcome!" he said. "Lay on that bed over there." Sainday said, "All right," he said. "Do you go to sleep?" he told that rabbit, Sainday. That rabbit said, "Yeah, I've been sleeping. I always go to sleep." Well, I'm going to beat you. I'm going to go to sleep, too. We will see which one can stay awake the most," he said. And that rabbit said, "All right." He laid down. He kinda every now and then looked at that rabbit. He still had his eyes open, you know, looking at him. He kept on until about midnight, again he looked. He said, "He is still looking at me." Just about toward morning he went off to sleep himself, Sainday. So that rabbit got up, you know and he went to that Sainday's bed and he got to him, you know. He got what he wanted out of Sainday you know. You see Sainday had that same kind of thought to that rabbit. Because, see that rabbit was waiting. Boy, he got through. I guess he went out, that rabbit. And then pretty soon he woke up and said, "Hein!" Sainday said, "Hein!" "I'm just wet all over! I wonder what happened!" he said. He got. He sat up, you know. He said, "Ah! I'm just wet! I wonder what happened! And that old thing, he's already gone." While he was sitting there he caught a cramp. And he said, "Ah, I'm going to have a stomach ache! I'm going to go out." And he went out. And when he went out he try to have a bowel movement. And every time he would strain a rabbit would come out! And these rabbits would come out, and he said, "Oh, gee! They're cute!" He began to pay attention to them. Well after that, he just kinda gathered them up and he took them back in the tent. And, oh, he just cussed that rabbit out. And he said, "I wonder where he went?" So the next time he said, "You all wait here. I'm sure sick in my stomach, I've got to run again." He went again. He said, "Well this time I'm gonna catch him."
