

want to get up. And my boy wouldn't let me. And Blender said, "Let her sit up." So Sally, she sat down behind me and I leaned on her. And they were signing. And boy, I tell you, I felt good! I felt good that night. And at midnight they bring water in. I drank. And after that water was taken out then Blender said, "Go outside and stretch around." So Sally and my boy, they took me. Oh, when I went out I wanted to go home. My boy said, "Well, you're about through, Mama. You're going to be all right. You're well." And in there, when I was in there, my fever break. I didn't have no fever. So we went back in. And another round come--this peyote. I took eight. And oh, all at once it was just like everything--"Tommy," I said, "I'm going to puke." And Sally said, "Try. Try not to," she said. So I tried not to. "Oh, it's coming," I told them. I guess my boy had a bucket over there ready. He come and put it down. Boy, I puked. And to tell the truth, you could see that--it was just foam, you know. Foam-like and it was pink. And they took it out. And Oscar said, "I'm going to take it out." And he prayed. He prayed first when he was going to take it out. And then he took it out and Blender holler at him and told him, "Wherever the wind is going," he said, "Throw it just as hard as you can." And I guess he did. And then towards morning I look at the door and--"Somebody wants to come in," they said. "Well, wait--after this drum gets to the door," they said. Well, when that drum gets to the door and comes across, they open the door and here if was Isaac Smoker. And he was kind of drunk. When I look at him it was just like--just like a little calf. "Oh, there's a calf," I said. Sally, she shook me. And my boy said, "Don't look over there." So I didn't look over there. They told me just to stay with it and look at this peyote. So I did. And boy, I tell you, them songs sure did sound good. And in the morning--when they got through in the morning--got through drinking water and that corn and stuff come around--after that they put it out and then this cousin of mine said, "Well, you can go home and rest," he said, "But we're going to be singing here. Go home and lay down." So Sally, she took me out and I walk home just like nothing was
