

you know, what the Santa Fe Trail across Oklahoma, you know. I imagine it's probably something like that.)

Anyway, that's--

(I'll see if I can check it though, and see if I can find out what it's all about.)

He said he was gonna show that film in the Ft. Worth station.

Susie: On T.V.?

On T.V., yeah.

(Well, I'll see if I can find out some more about it for you.)

Anyway, Wilma's--

(Wilma's in it?)

We'll watch now. He was really taking her.

(Yeah.)

Taking her dancing, you know.

(Yeah.)

Susie: I don't get to go with her. Our youngest granddaughter plays basketball Saturday nights, so someone's got to be here. Then our youngest grandson, you know, he won't go anywhere.

JOHN'S FAMILY

You know my dad's daddy, his name was Chief Whitehorse. My cousin show--I don't know if it's American History, or Oklahoma--

Susie: No, it's some kind of a book. It's a historical book of some kind, I don't know. He's in there. I just wondered if you had it down there--

(I imagine.)

Cheyenne. His name is Whitehorse.

(Whitehorse. That was your father's father?)

Father's father. Yeah. He had four sons, and each one went by their Indian names. Like my daddy, he went by Black Owl and another one by Minks (?), and this third one, Red Leg and this fourth was the
