orly one used "his name, Whitehorse:
(Did he have another name besides, JOHN'S UNCLE CHİE WHITEHORSE SIGNED MEDICINE LODGE TREATY

Well, it's just this Chief Whitehorse and I saw his picture: Bu't I don't know what. But anyway, we went up to Fonda-had a dance up there on a Sunday. And one of them Chiefs asked me my permission-he's buried up there somewhere and they want to know iff they could get his body and bury/ it at Ft. Sill. He's one of them that signed the-- (End of Side A)
Susie: That Medicine Lodge /not clear/ with it. The fead all of their peace treaty that they had signed, you know, they commemorate \all of those events, you know. And boy! You should have seen all those cowboys and soldiers tb get to this Cheyenne on their horse. /lıags/ I said, "Boy, we call them peace-loving"Cheyennes/interruption/. We are feally renegades." /1aughter/ Thext sentence not clear/ Nót refated to these Smokes, Big Tree (?).

MISCELLANEOUS COMMENTS

(Yeah. Yeah. I don't knowlexactly họw it fits together, but I know it kinda--familys)
/irrelevant conversation/
Susie: My mother was half white, and sḥ̂e was Cheyenne and Kiowa.
And I come along and I'm half Caddo. Vlaughter/ We realiy are all mixed up'.
They was passing these out down there:
Susie: Oh, that's-...
Um-huh. That general down there send me invitation.
Susie: Christmas week.
Christmas week.
(I know what you are talking about. I got ond of those too, but

