Ella Lou Chalepah Neconie-2l -J. Jordan

SIDE B

(On the other side of the tape you just eot through saying it was a pretty good fight, and I asked you how many people were in it-wóuld you start from there?) Well, now let's see. There was, I'd say, about, six-my brother and his wife and my sister, and them ny sister-in-law's sister and her nusband, and then another boy. Then Rachael tried to make me co over there, and I told her that I didn't want to get whipped because I was drunk..too. So--"you all just make out the best way you all know how."
(How did you say it started!)
It started with--well, they all were standing there--It was Libby and Junior and Rachael. And they were all standing there talkin.
(:ov Libby is Junior's wife, and Rachael's your sister and Junior's your protrer!) Uh-huh, and so, I don't know wow he mot the shoes, but this rirl ceme up to him and sime said "Hold ry shoes". nd so Juntor was holdins 'em and he didn't cuen thir... anythine and before he knew it, his wife hit him. So'that's when Rachael came after me. So I vent back there and Junior was laying on the ground and libby was prett: well fixed up--I mean, from what I could see of her. of course, we all were, but she couldn't control herself. So Rachael took up for ilfred and then. they scrapped around on the sice of the tank there and then Libb:'s sister husbanc ju ped in. So this friend of mine, Thuman Kaulity, he fumped in and ne too\% us for Rachael. So right there, :e all mace them part: then ie rent on howe. (:12l of your:)

Uh-ruh. And that was the sorriest one I've eve: went to. (Did that cause much troutle then between Junior and Libcy:) No, the next day, they were tosether acain.
(On they were?)
Uh-huh. As if nothint happened. Of course, she said that she didn't know what tavpened, but I was just as drunis as she was, but I knew exactly what happened, you

