

(Yeah.)

About that long there.

(Yeah.)

I don't see that kind anymore, but they, I seen some of them other Indians, you know, have it on their dresses.

(Yeah.)

You know what I mean.

(Yeah, yeah.)

Sea shells, I guess that's what they call it.

(Do they -- do they mark those anyway? Are they just plain or painted or what?)

Well, they're just plain. They don't mark them like these other tribes, you know, do.

(Okay, and then when -- when one side starts, are there -- how many people hide those two things, those two shells?)

Just two.

(There's two.)

Yeah, when the, when the, when the two's finished, you know.

(Yeah.)

They take them away to somebody to hide, you know.

(Yeah.)

That's where they -- I guess, you saw the game.

(Yeah.)

Yeah, they hide, you know. I don't know. That's the way play it, you know.

(Yeah. How -- when somebody's guessing, how do they -- do they guess with their hand, or do they say something?)

Yeah, yeah, yeah, they -- they just make motion, you know, the way -- the side you got it on, you know, like that.
