

I don't know. Some of them goes this way, you know. I think it's mostly this way.

(Yeah.)

They call this right, you know, left, but you're using your right, you know. It goes here -- just so it go around, you know.

(Yeah, yeah.)

I don't know which way it starts. Right, mostly right, you know, they --

(Do the -- do the Wichita call that to the right, this way?)

Well. Yeah, well, in a way, you know, we go that way, you know.

(Yeah.)

I know my mother used to, you know, whenever, you know, when she returns thanks, you know. Well, that was her way.

(Yeah.)

She get the food go this way.

(Yeah.)

Then, she go on, she used to four times, you know, she goes that way, east and south, west, north.

(Yeah.)

Yeah, well, she's always, she just starts this way. ✓

(Yeah.)

Then, after she started, you know, well, just keep going to the right --

(Yeah.)

-- like that. That's the reason I say, you know, look like they go to left, but they turn, you know. They -- that's they, -- that's the way she used to do it, you know. She didn't go this other way, you know.

(Yeah.)

She went this way --
