

MAGIC

I haven't seen none of those things (witchcraft) but on guy would take a black handkerchief if he wants to do a little entertainment, he takes that black handkerchief and he throws it. When he throws it well a crow flies and goes around him and gets on top of him, then he comes down as a handkerchief. And the same guy when they put up the town here (Apache) had one of these salt shakers, maybe you seen them, they have lead down on the bottom, and you could tilt it and let go and it stands back up. There used to be a lot of stuff made that way. Before now they even had toys made that way...let it go and it stands back up because it's lead on the bottom. Somehow this waiter watching this Indian with the salt shaker hold it down and turn it loose the salt shaker stands there, and starts to rock. This fellow, waiter, says "I'll give you so much to make that lay down." And this old Indian, he doesn't understand and somebody heard it from back there, and told this Indian and he says, "I'll make it disappear." This Indian never told that fellow, he just hit that salt shaker on top and he took his hand off....no salt shaker. So he took his handkerchief off his neck, and put it on this table and took it off and there was the salt shaker.

(Who was this fellow?)

Ah...I don't quite remember...ah...they said that was Daveco
I don't know, that might be him. They say he was a wizard. Oh, he
