STORY ABOUT HOW SAINDAY COOKS AND EATS HIS OWN IEG; HIS ADVENTURE WITH THE WHTRLWIND WOMAN, AND HOW HE TRICKFD THE PRAIRIE DOGS AND GOT TRICKED BY COIOTE; SAINDAY PLAYING WITH THE SUN
He is telling about when he was a young boy way baçk. He ịs talking about this--you'call it "coyote," you know but the Kiowas call it "Sainday." He said, when I was a young boy they taiky about him. They used to tell stories about what different things he rum into. He said one day that he was' just laying there just crying over nothing. He must have been miserabie about something. So he said, "I'm going ty jump off this high cliff." So he did. This Sainday did. He jump off this hígh cliff and he oroke his leg. So when he broke his leg hécut it off and started eating this marrow. So while he was eating it he said, "Ah, it's really good. I believe I will make a fire," he said. So he drug himself around, and he made fire, and he cooked the meat which was on the leg of the bone. He cooked that-meat. And he was eating it with that marrow and he said, "Gee, it's good! I believe I/will break my other leg!" So he jumped up. and did it the same way again. So he did the same thing. So when he got through, he come to, and he said, "Well, I am sitting right here and now, and I'm sure enough miserable," he said. "I don't have no legs'. What am I going to do?" he said. " "I'll juist wish for another pair of legs," he said. So, hé said, he got him another pair of legs. And then he started 'waiking you know. He got so far and he said he met, this pretty woman in the woods, where he was walking. And this woman said, "Hey, where ygu going?" she sàid. He said; "Ah, I'm just moseying along you know And he asked her "What you doing?". She said, "I'm just walking aroynd, too." So, he said, "Weli, let's get married," he said. This woman baid, "I'm too much trouble. I'm always getting into something," she/said. "You
