

He was just slicing that meat and hanging it up. And pretty soon that panther came, and he said, "Hey Sainday," he said, "I've come after my kids." He said, "Your kids are too lazy. They don't hustle! They don't do nothing!" he said. "They're no good," he said. "Take them back. I want mine back." That was a short story right there.

(Another segment of T-71 played. This time Able tells a story in English. However, his English is so broken that transcription is very difficult and so not included here.)

SAINDAY MEETS AND TRICKS A WHITE MAN

He said, ~~one~~ time this white man met up with Sainday. He is all dressed up like a Texan, with a big hat and tie, boots, coat and a gun, and scabbard. And the white man said, "Hey Sainday, I heard you can sure cheat people and you sure can lie," he said. "But there is one thing I want. I lost one of my horses, and I want you to go look. I want you to find him for me. He is my best horse." And Sainday said, "All right," he said. "Yeah, I will. But, you know, I can't go like this," he said. "I got to have everything--your hat and everything. Give me your hat, first," he said. So he gave him his hat. Then he asked for his boots and his tie. So he went, you know. After he had given him all his clothes, he went. And he never did come back, he said. (Evelyn's version is slightly different from Able's. In Able's story Sainday tells the white man he left his medicine way off and needs to use white man's horse to get it--j.j.)

SAINDAY PRETENDS TO DOCTOR A WOUNDED DEER BUT INSTEAD LETS IT DIE AND EATS IT

He said he heard of a deer camp somewhere, Sainday. He wanted to go and discover it, you know. He was after more so he could kill one and eat one.
